

A model can be far better at writing code that works without being any better at writing code that is well structured

Correctness varies enormously

Structural defect density does not

