

The similarity family is internally redundant; the structural family is not correlation of detection strength across the twelve defects

Each point is one pair of measures. A pair that agreed perfectly would sit at +1; a pair carrying unrelated information sits near 0. Bars are group medians. Similarity measures nearly duplicate each other; structural measures do not, so dropping one loses something no other covers.