

Measures that agree are redundant; the block structure is the empirical case for keeping both families

